Redfern Corsets

The High-Grade Economy Corset

Q We like to fit Redferns—there is something about the modeling—so different, so clear-cut in contour—your figure so naturally takes on the Corset shape—the materials are so beautiful—the texture is so soft, and the boning—well, it is strong enough to sustain.

Q A figure to be proud of is made with a Redfern Corset—we say this with all due respect to other makes, and to ladies who have a preference for fine, choice, back-lace Corsets, we say Redfern.

Q The newest models are here, and you will find skillful fitting, and interested, thoughtful attention.

Among the names of those arrested charged with taking part in the rioting in Roxbury, Mass., on Thursday, May day, was Luigi Salvucchi of Quincy, Mass. Mr. Salvucchi is remembered in Barre as one of the leaders of the opposition to any settlement by the granite cutters' union with the manufacturers in 1915. The complete failure of his L. W. W. policy, with the consequent loss of time and wages to his followers in Barre, caused him to seek new fields. Recently he has been heard from as taking a hand in the strike of the granite cutters in Quincy and when an agreement was reached he tried to present an acceptance of the settlement by members of the union.

A recent investment of the Montpelier and Barre Lighting and Power company to insure service to the public was in an enormously large transformer, capable of a range of 33,000 volts. Because of its immense size it was shipped here from the General Electric company of Pittsfield, Mass., on a specially built car, and by means of the large boom derrick located in the yards of the Saginaw granite firm, its bulky weight, 10,000 pounds, was transferred to a wooden track built to the power plant on Granite street. Large steel rollers were used in placing it in its permanent position beside 12 other transformers. This is the largest of the 13 and will be used when others are disabled, though at present it remains unconnected.

Shortly after the accident he was able to walk to a physician's office to have the wound over one eye dressed.

OPEN NEW QUARRY.

Crown Hill Property Near Milford, N. H., to Be Developed.

Milford, N. H., May 3.—A new quarry for monumental stock is being opened on the Hutchinson property in the south part of Milford. John E. Pirovano, Anthony J. Rossi and William Shinkwin are the men behind the new development.

The new concern will be known as the Crown Hill quarry. Indications are there will be a large production of fine grained hard, dark colored stock. A new derrick and several carloads of equipment have arrived or are expected daily.

Messrs. Pirovano and Rossi are both experienced granite men, heads of monument cutting plants. Shinkwin came to Milford several years ago as government inspector, to see that fungus and insect pests were not sent to uninfected parts of the country on shipments of granite.

Good monumental stock formerly brought less than a dollar a cubic foot. The price is now $3. This encourages quarrymen to develop properties, as the demand by the cutting plants is always taxing the output of those quarries which are not limited to building and paving granite.

The new concern will ship from North Brookline, where the siding on the railroad is considerably nearer than Milford.

HATE COLD BATHS.

Englishmen Back from the War Now Prefer Warm Water.

London, May 3.—That British fetish, the cold bath, has lost its attractions for many soldiers who have returned from France. The occasional baths they got in rest billets during the war were hot, and they soon acquired the hot-bath habit along with a distaste for cold water. One soldier who used to be a cold bath enthusiast says:

"My experiments with cold baths since returning from the front have made me wonder whether the cold bath habit is not really a pernicious fad, and to conclude that I survived it only because I was broken into it when very young and resilient."

"The first cold bath I had at home gave me the 'blues' all day; the next gave me a stiff neck in addition, and the third day I developed rheumatism. They said that the British are a class three nation physically. I wonder whether cold baths have anything to do with it."

Wives and domestic servants are said to be opposed to the new hot bath habit of the returned soldiers. Hot baths mean the consumption of more coal and require more work in preparation.
